

Michael is Vice President of Network Strategy for Oscar Health Insurance. In his role, Michael is responsible for developing new and innovative provider partnerships and for identifying local and national strategic network growth opportunities. Oscar is a new plan based in New York City whose sole focus is selling plans to individuals both on and off the exchange. Oscar's goal is to use technology, design and data to intuitively change the way consumers interact with their health plan. He has spoken nationally on the use of data to build provider networks and on ACO and exchange provider partnerships and strategies. He holds an MBA in Management from Rutgers University and is a member of the metro NY chapter of HFMA who misses being a part of the NJ chapter of HFMA.